

Common Chicory

Cichorium intybus

Leaves are like dandelions. Pointed, sometimes lobed, depending on how high up on the stem.

Yes! This is the plant used in some coffees.

Many flowers on each branch. They each last about a day.

Flowers are a lavender blue color with squared off ends.

Chicory spreads rapidly once established in an area and does well in poor soil along roadsides.

