

Creeping Charlie

Glechoma hederacea

Also known as cats foot, ground-ivy and run-away-robin

Creeping charlie is hard to destroy because its roots run a long way underground. It can survive mowing and make patches on your lawn. In the wild this destroys space for other flowers.